

I oppose weakening any of the six media ownership rules. Thomas Jefferson said that the most important requirement for democracy to succeed is a free press. These media ownership rules help to allow citizens to be correctly employed. If you are comfortable with weakening the ownership rules because most media conglomerates today are owned by Americans of a Republican bent, consider how you would feel if they were taken over by a foreign entity or someone whose politics is different from yours.